Classroom Highlights

from the desk of Mrs. Congelio

What's your superpower? Students in Mrs. Micheli's sixth grade technology class explored robotics using LEGOs and the Warrior Design Process to create an everyday object. Students were challenged to create something unique for the object, serving as its superpower. For the final product, students will use coding to program the object to move.

As a creative culmination to Jacqueline Davies' novel, The Lemonade War, the third grade class reimagined their own lemonade stands and wow, were we in for a treat at the offerings they showcased to their peer customers!

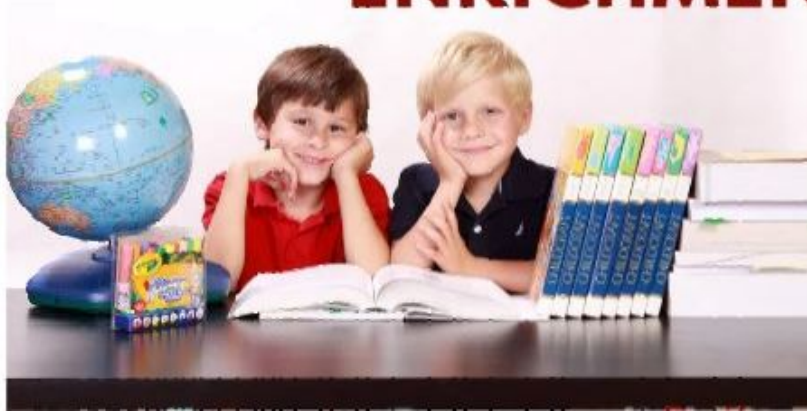

From mobile booths to bracelets, grandma's iced tea to chocolate, snow cones to paintings, coffee to new lemonade ideas, slime to ice cream, and brownies to cookies, they have got you covered!

Students applied ideas from the book and the entrepreneurial Lemonade Stand Game and made decisions such as their career role, where they could be found and why, pricing (cost and profit), branding, and more! Recognizing that to compete in the marketplace, a business needs to set themselves apart from the competition, students had innovative ideas such as: senior discounts, price-point deals, buy-one-get-one, customizable creations, and so much more! We would not be surprised to find some of these businesses come to fruition as they worked through the Warrior Design Cycle and have now received some feedback from their peers!
